Memorandum on the probable amount of rain and snow in Northwest India in January, February and March 1969

It is possible in some years to form a rough estimate of the probable amount of Winter Precipitation in Northwest India during January to March (with the exception of March rainfall in Uttar Pradesh), from certain antecedent atmospheric conditions in different parts of the globe. The factors which act as guides in this matter are, in the order of decreasing reliability, the following :—

1. Mean pressure in December in South America,
2. December rain at Port Blair,
3. The westerly component of the upper winds over Northern India at a height of 5 to 8 kms. (September second half and October first half),
4. December rain at Quetta.

2. Division "Northwest India"

In this memorandum "Northwest India" is taken to consist of Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, the Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi, Chandigarh, Rajasthan and Gujarat.

3. Data

The relevant data for the present season are :—

1. South American Pressure.—Pressure was 0.4 mb. below normal in December,
2. December rainfall at Port Blair was in moderate defect.
3. The westerly component of the upper winds over Northern India during September—October was normal.
4. Quetta rain in December was in moderate excess.

4. Conclusion

Out of the four factors which are used in forecasting winter precipitation in Northwest India, this year High Level Winds over Northern India are favourable, Quetta Rain and Port Blair Rain are both moderately favourable but South American Pressure is moderately unfavourable. The combined rainfall and snowfall in Northwest India during the period January to March 1969 is likely to be normal.
